

Dr. Stephanie Taylor-White, N.D.
Monroe WA

Dr. Taylor-White received her Naturopathic Medicine degree from Bastyr University in Seattle and is licensed in the State of Washington. She pursued pre-med studies at the University of Washington where she was a national merit scholar, graduating Cum Laude and Phi Beta Kappa. She is an active member of both the American and Washington associations of Naturopathic Physicians and has been in practice since 1995.

Dr. Taylor-White treats both adults and children for acute and chronic infections. She has worked with MRSA, Staph, C. difficile, candida yeast, parasites and other infections. She also has experience in digestive disorders, hormonal imbalances, peri-menopause, detoxification, food allergies, fatigue, fibromyalgia, migraines, and skin problems. She specializes in detoxification and women's health, as well as offering holistic and natural family medicine. Her primary treatment modalities include herbal medicines, probiotics, homeopathic medicine, dietary changes and oral and IV vitamin therapies.

Dr. Taylor-White believes strongly in the healing power of nature and is committed to treating all levels of the person: body, mind and spirit. Her style of healing combines knowledge of the medical sciences and natural therapies, with caring and sensitivity to bring about a healing partnership with her patients. She strives to become a partner with her patients in health, to treat the whole person and find the cause of illness.

Dr. Taylor-White offers phone consultations to patients from out of state, and for established patients who have had a visit in person first if they live in Washington State. Her clinic is a preferred provider with most insurance companies, which covers the cost of office visits and lab work. Her office can handle billing for the patient in most cases.
